

GRENADIANS ATTEND
GREENWOOD CHAMBER
COMMERCE BANQUET

Principal Address by Hon. Barney Eaton in Which He Ably Discusses Mississippi's Business Plight. The Data He Cites Should Make Thinking People Get Busy.

Greenwood, Miss., Jan. 27.—At the Chamber of Commerce annual banquet last night the oppressive laws, which stifle the industrial and commercial development of Mississippi were brought forcibly to the attention of the more than two hundred members and guests who attended the great annual event of that body. In a magnificent address, filled with interesting information, and replete with sound common sense in the matter of leading Mississippi from its industrial slough of despond, Hon. Barney Eaton, of South Mississippi, discussed the growth of Mississippi, calling attention to its loss in population, and its lack of industries, and in well considered phrases and resistless logic suggested a remedy from the movement of retrogression now prevalent.

Following Mr. Eaton's able talk, Col. A. H. Egan, of the Y. & M. V. Road; Joe Hattendorf, freight representative of the same road; O. F. Lawrence, silver tongued orator of Grenada, and brilliant editor of the Grenada Sentinel made short talks. Both Col. Egan and Mr. Hattendorf spoke of the cordial relationship existing between the Railroad and Greenwood and highly complimented the spirit of co-operation they have met with on the part of Greenwood.

The question of drainage characterized as the most serious problem now confronting Leflore County was ably discussed by Hon. R. C. McBee, and by Judge Lomax, who told of the districts now being formed above Greenwood to bring the water down more rapidly than heretofore.

Hon. S. I. Osborn, president of the Chamber of Commerce, presided as toast master and introduced Hon. W. M. Hammer, who in turn, after speaking of the work of organization and paying a high tribute to secretary F. Heri, as the real dynamo of the live organization introduced Hon. Barney E. Eaton.

Mr. Eaton said in part: "There are three elements contributing to the business well being of any state, these are its population, its industries and its agriculture."

"Mississippi in the decade 1910 to 1920 showed an actual loss in population. We all recall the disappointment experienced by many localities in Mississippi when the census reports were given out, and when it appeared that every town had a population smaller than it had expected and in many instances instead of making a gain, an actual loss was shown. Finally the whole story came out, and we were informed that our state had lost in population between 1910 and 1920 approximately 7,500 people. We were then told that this loss in population was due to the migration of the negro, and we were given assurance that we had made a gain in white population, and were able to sustain the net loss which had occurred."

"But a close investigation and study of the census returns reveals an alarming situation. There was a loss in negro population of 15,000. The gain in white population was in round numbers 17,500, but the gain is not hopeful. The census discloses that between 10 years of twenty and forty-five, the negro population of Mississippi was smaller in 1920 than it was in 1910. Mississippi had therefore in the decade ending 1920, lost in adult white population, its gain being substantially almost in children—children whom the state is educating at large expense, children that are being fitted for useful, active service, but children who will, in the present tendency continues, leave the state and will give to other states the wealth of service and opportunity they are taking away from directly to the study of other factors in the welfare of the state."

"A similar loss is found in the study of agriculture. In 1909 Mississippi had 2,281 farms less than it had in 1919, while the general total of agricultural products in volume in 1919 was substantially less than in 1909. And we should remember that 1919 represents the peak of production not only in agricultural products taking the nation as a whole, but in the process received for these products. With all this impetus to increase our population, our state produced in quantity less in 1919 than it did in 1909. It is true that the farm products in 1919 represented a much higher value than those of 1909, but this increase in price was due to nothing local in Mississippi."

"Yet even in 1919 there were 7500 more farm mortgages in Mississippi than in 1909. Another thing with reference to agriculture is that the production of cotton and corn are so vastly in excess as to leave little else, with cotton largely in the ascendancy."

"In industries eighty per cent of the total manufactured wealth is in lumber and on cotton seed, with lumber representing 60 per cent, and these are bulky products which must be manufactured locally on account of the great cost in transportation. Of the remaining 20 per cent of manufactured wealth, 5 per cent is represented in work in the railroad shops."

I am told that here in the Delta where you raise the finest cotton on earth not one pound of it is manufactured into cloth, and total value of cotton goods manufactured in Mississippi in 1919 was $8,000,000. There are a score of towns in the Carolinas in which there is a greater production in the value of cotton goods than that of the entire state of Mississippi.

"The showing in the entire field of manufactures is still more discouraging. The total value of manufactures for 1919 was $197,747,000 and of this amount $96,000,000 was for raw material, leaving a total value created by manufacturing process in the state of $100,000,000. There is not a southern state which does not have in it some city or manufacturing center which produces more in the way of manufacturing value than the entire state of Mississippi and except for the Carolinas, the southern states are far below the Middle Atlantic and New England States in manufacturing."

"There were in Mississippi in 1919 only 57,560 wage earners, of which 25 per cent were employed in the saw mills. It necessarily follows that we have no local market for the farm products. If we had the manufactures in the state we would have the local market, and the farmer would profit accordingly."

What Mississippi Lacks.

"Why then should we not have and why do we not have a manufacturing development in Mississippi comparable to that of other states? It must be due to one of three things—either to a lack of natural advantages, or to a lack of intelligent management and labor in the state, or to the attitude of the state itself. We believe in the natural advantages of Mississippi. Our soil is good, our climate is excellent, our people are congenial. I do not believe that we are handicapped by natural disadvantages. Neither do I think we are lacking in intelligence. If these two things are sufficient, it must follow that there is something in the attitude of the state that is preventing its industrial development, and the attitude of the state is in my opinion the exact reason for our present situation."

Fixing the Blame.

"About thirty years ago, our legislature established the office of Revenue Agent, at the time primarily to enforce the collection of taxes on a fee basis. Gradually this power has been extended and to-day the Revenue Agent is authorized to bring any kind of suit in the name of the state, to collect penalties or fines, as well as back taxes and to receive as his compensation twenty per cent of whatever amount he collects. In other words, the name and credit and the power of the state have been loaned in this particular office, with the injunction to proceed to the collection of every penny that can be collected in the name of the state."

"I do not have in mind the present occupant of the Revenue Agent's office. I am talking of the office and not of the man, because the evils proceed from the legislation and not from the man. In every important center of the state there are representatives of what has grown to be the greatest single factor in the political life of Mississippi, held together by the most cohesive force known to man—that of public plunder, who watch out for every possible sort of opportunity to catch a glimpse of its guard, and to inflict upon the penalties provided by the law."

Destructive Suits.

"For a little while I would like to mention some of the litigation that has recently been instituted by the revenue agent. Not long ago the manager of one of the largest lumber companies in the state told me that his company some years before bought some land which had been sold to the state before the Civil War. His company had located his logging road on some of this land, which lay between the mill and timber. Without any notice of the suit of the state, he was one day served with an injunction which prevented him from operating his road and bringing his timber to the mill. He was forced to spend $25,000 in relocating the road, while the suit was pending. After while it was decided that the injunction ought not to have been issued, but what good did that do the lumber company, for in such cases the state gives no bond and pays no damages."

"Here is the remainder of the story. He told me that for many years he had carried his deposits in Mississippi banks, but that he had recently transferred his checking to New Orleans, because under the law the Revenue Agent, it was whispered the bank books to be brought into court and collect back taxes on money deposited. The last legislature passed a law exempting bank deposits from taxation but I seriously doubt its constitutionality."

"While this condition is prevailing in Mississippi, the state of Louisiana in its recent constitutional convention specifically exempted from all taxation money placed on deposit in Louisiana."

What's the Matter?

"One of the vice presidents of one of the largest banks in New York recently said to me, that the state of Mississippi can never expect to interest outside capital or secure industrial development by the aid of outside capital as long as there stands a monument in the capital building, at Jackson, built by the money of the Illinois Central Railroad."

"The editor of the New Orleans Item, recently told me 'Litigation is your popular pastime, your kingly sport, and your state reserves for the past ten years will be continued.'"

THE ENGINEERS MAKE
AMAZING CHARGES

Vouchers Shown at Hearing in Tallahatchie-Yocona Drainage Matter Show That the Engineers Never Had Much Regard for the Pockets of Tax Payers.

J. H. James, president of the board of supervisors of Grenada County; W. M. Mitchell, county attorney, and W. M. Dubard, who went along as a taxpayer and interested citizen, are just back from Batesville, where they went to attend Chancellor J. G. McGowan's court, before which Mr. James had been summoned to appear on contempt charges because of the failure of the board of supervisors of Grenada County to make a certain tax levy of 27 mills on the property in the Yocona-Tallahatchie drainage district, which district was annulled by the state supreme court. It seems that when the district was killed by the state's highest court, that the disturbing question with the promoters of the district was, "Who is going to pay the expenses incurred up to now?" Naturally those who opposed the district did not think that their property should be assessed for something that they protested against and which was declared to be invalid.

Later, proceedings were instituted to levy the necessary tax to cover the expenses of engineers and attorneys as well as others engaged. The gentlemen from this county at Batesville express some amazement at certain items in the expense bill. For example, they state that a charge of $51 shows on the engineers' bill for treating a carbene on a negro employee's neck; railroad fares galore from Peoria, Ill., the headquarters of the contracting engineers, and that some of these fares covered trips to Gulfport and other places. A bill for the flesh and feathers of a duck, which changed ownership is submitted, and $2,000 for a Memphis attorney.

A Mississippi firm of lawyers represented the drainage board.

These gentlemen assert that it appears that attorneys were employed with the hope of creating a snarl of good will rather than for their legal services. The total expense bill was $210,000, to which $15,000 was added, it appears, for contingencies. The amazing charges of the engineers if these Grenada County gentlemen understand the vouchers submitted it would seem, is enough to make those who are not already in drainage districts and who must of necessity use engineers if drainage work is done, think a great many times before they leap.

Recent drainage laws require either 20 per cent of landowners, owning a majority of the land, or a majority of the land owners owning 20 per cent of the land, to get a drainage proposition before the courts, and it is stated that when these requirements are made that the chancery judge has no discretion. A great many express astonishment that the legislature should have enacted a law which would give any set of men, engineers or others, carte blanche in contracting obligations to be paid out of public funds.

Many of those in this now dead drainage district, state that it was estimated that the initial expense, preliminary survey, etc., would not exceed $40,000, nevertheless it has gone over five times that amount.

It developed that another rather novel thing in this litigation is that the contracting drainage authorities made the engineers also the auditors of the vouchers.

The drainage law is so framed that a chancery judge can do but little but sign on the dotted line when those behind a drainage matter come into court meeting legal requirements.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God who doeth all things well, has seen fit to remove Mrs. Lucy Lea Scruggs, our former teacher; Therefore be it resolved:

First, That we the members of the Ladies' Bible Class, do honor and hold sacred the memory of our former teacher and co-worker, who has entered into life more abundant and express our tribute of appreciation for her good deeds, her untiring and efficient services in the Sunday School and her association with us, which have ever been helpful and will be an influence for good in the years to come.

Second, It is impossible for human words to estimate the true value of any character, especially one like hers that was overflowing with benevolence. She was untiring in service, fervent in spirit, firm in faith, kind and sympathetic in heart. Her strong personality will be greatly missed by us.

Third, That copies of these resolutions be furnished the relatives, The Sentinel for publication and one for the class.

GLENWILD'S SALE OF
DUROC JERSEY SOWS

The Sale a Great Tribute to Mr. Borden and Shows That Mississippi Stock Equal to Best. Average Price Paid $68. Buyers from Distant States.

The sale of Duroc Jersey brood sows at Glenwild plantation Tuesday was an epoch-making day in the history of Grenada County and of Mississippi. Had the sale and the day not been a sure enough reality, one might have concluded that it was either a dream or that he had been suddenly transported to fairy land or to some place where the best in hogs had been from the day whence the mind of man runneth not to the contrary.

Stock journals, lecturers, newspapers and others have long and long talked and written about just such a day and such hogs as were sold that day. But like much other good doctrine that is preached, it went into one ear and out the other ear without in many instances making even a bare impression on the brain.

It has not been so long ago that it was not an uncommon thing to hear it said, "Why anybody knows that Mississippi cannot raise any such hogs as Iowa, Missouri or Illinois can. We are just not cut out to raise that class of hogs down here, nature did not intend it." But this section is raising hogs not only as big and as perfect in every way as those states, but some mighty good judges say they are better.

Grenada County has many things linked with the past that it is proud of. Grenada has never taken a backward place in history. It is a young County, comparatively speaking. But from its very infancy, it seems that its people had a way of doing some extraordinary things. At times it has seemed to have leaped in farming and in the line of advancement in many ways, but it would soon get the stop and as soon as it got it, it was leading the van.

Who could have been made to believe ten years ago that there would be a Glenwild in Grenada County so early as this? But it is here, and it is one of the most beautiful and most handsomely arranged and best kept farm properties in all the Delta. What would one have expected to hear had he said fifteen years ago, that Duroc Jerseys would be raised in Grenada County that would bring the best and richest in swine breeders to Grenada County? But that was witnessed on Tuesday.

It was for an Illinois financier, Mr. John Borden, to come from his Chicago estate and show the great possibilities of Mississippi. Mr. Borden turned aside from his great interest in Chicago and other places and saw fit to invest a few thousands of his wealth in 5000 acres of land just south of Grenada which he has converted into a veritable garden of beauty and completeness.

Grenada claims Mr. Borden as her very own and he modestly and pleasantly submits to the ownership. He is modest in all things and if anyone advertises him, it has got to be done without his consent. More and more does he become a part of the life of the community and more and more do his epigrammatic sentences shape up business and community affairs around Grenada. He is gracious and obliging in all things. A very marked evidence of his thoughtfulness and of his public spirit was shown Tuesday when he volunteered to the ladies of the Episcopal church who were serving luncheon in the administration building where the hogs were being auctioned off that those at the auction were his guests and that he wanted the luncheon served free and that he would pay the bill.

The hogs were regarded as beauties by expert judges. They were said to be as pretty and as perfect as were ever seen.

The average of $68 per head for 34 head might be called a bargain counter price compared with prices in the boom days, but it seemed to have been pleasing to the owner of Glenwild place. In fact, he didn't seem half as interested in that feature as he was in the fact that so many of his fine animals were scattered among his neighbors. That apparently has been one of his greatest ambitions since he bought the 5600-acre place a few years ago. Nothing has been too good for the folks around Grenada.

One of the incidents of the sale was the purchase of two sows for Berea College, Berea, Ky. They will be presented to the Blue Grass school by the American Duroc Association, the national organization of Duroc breeders. Secretary R. J. Evans was present at the sale and bought both animals. Berea College will use them as foundation stock in their agricultural department with a view to teaching young farmers of Eastern Kentucky, Western Virginia and that section, some 2,500 students in number, the advantages of raising pure bred hogs.

The sale at Glenwild plantation marks the beginning of a new industry on the big farm, for Mr. Borden is going to remove his entire Duroc herd from Fernwood, Miss., where he owns another big place, and establish it permanently at the outskirts of Grenada. His Fernwood farm, consisting of several thousand acres, was bought from the Enochs brothers, who built up a great reputation for their Duroc hogs. Animals offered in Tuesday's sale were the pick of the

PREACHERS OF DISTRICT
MEET HERE

Those of This Presiding Elder's District Called Together.

Rev. R. A. Tucker, presiding elder of the Grenada district, North Mississippi Conference, called a meeting of the ministers of the district to meet in Grenada Wednesday afternoon of this week for the purpose of making working plans and in the hope of getting every one of the preachers to gird on the armour of well directed, persistent and intelligent work.

Almost every phase of church work was brought under review. The peculiar conditions, if there were any, of every community were discussed. The matter of soul-saving, of the quickening of religious intelligence and of religious energy was sought to be impressed by all.

Besides the local members of the clergy of the Methodist church, there were present: Revs. W. R. Lott, Holly Springs, L. P. Wasson, Water Valley, W. R. Jennings, Waterford circuit, G. A. Baker, Coffeeville, G. D. Burt, Duck Hill, H. G. Roberts, The Plant, C. H. Varner, Winona, J. S. Maxey, Winona circuit, J. W. Raper, Vaiden, G. W. Robertson, Poplar Creek, W. F. Rogers, Holcomb, J. S. Duncan, Pickens, R. P. Nebbett, Durant, R. G. Carlisle, Sallis, A. G. Harding, Ebenezer, and J. W. Ward, Lexington. Mr. L. H. Estes, of Memphis, secretary of the Methodist hospital board, was present and made a report on hospital finances, so also were Revs. B. P. Jacob, J. H. Holder and R. H. B. Gladney, connectional men. The meeting adjourned Thursday at noon.

NOTED LECTURER TO BE HERE TWO DAYS

Grenada College and the City High School, acting together, have secured Dr. Frederick D. Losey, one of the most celebrated lecturers of the country for two days during February. He will lecture at 11 o'clock and in the evenings at the College chapel. It is usually regarded as a great treat to have this distinguished man visit a community. One of his subjects will be, "The Value of the Individual," and in this day when it seems that almost everybody is trying to "organize" the individual, it is at least refreshing when one is found who will discuss individualism.

LAD OF 19 YEARS TAKES MULE AND THEN A HORSE.

A 19 year old boy by the name of Willie McCain who is said to have been reared a few miles in the country from Eupora, Miss., lies in jail in Grenada on the charge of having stolen a horse in Eupora Monday night of this week from a Mr. McCain, however, no relation of his. The youth rode the horse to Grenada and swapped it to Horace Tillman for another horse. Yesterday McCain appeared in Grenada and made affidavit against Willie McCain for stealing his horse. Willie, it seems, was taking things leisurely here about town when Sheriff Dogan arrested him.

McCain got his horse, and Willie is said to have made a clean breast of the whole affair. The boy, it is said, comes of a good, honest family, and the community around Eupora is shocked at what he has done. A mule went away from Eupora in company with somebody other than the owner about Christmas. That mule was found here near Grenada in the possession of Mr. Taylor, to whom Willie McCain sold it, evidently only a few days after he stole it. Willie got off so well with the mule, that he went back again, and, as usual when the devil is leading one around, the boy was lead one time too much.

Have you got ticket No. 33681, in the Gold Distribution that was given as a Christmas Gift? If you have that number, $50 is yours.

Enochs herds, which have been culled to the bone and will be rebuilt at the new home at Glenwild. The change will be made as quickly as preparation can be perfected to properly care for the stock at Glenwild which will be within the next few months. It is likely that a system of semi-annual sales will be inaugurated.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING
DEMONSTRATORS

State and District Men Bring A. & M. College Workers Together in Council. Many Phases of Farm Work Discussed. Dr. Hull Defends the College.

County Farm Demonstration agents of north and central Mississippi and J. W. Willis, State Agent, and L. A. Olson, district agent, met at the court house in Grenada Tuesday to make plans for the present year and to review the work of the year 1922.

L. A. Olson presided and the first speaker presented was H. E. Savely, of Washington, D. C., head of the farm extension work. Mr. Savely is an interesting talker and he urged that every farmer carrying what he termed an insurance policy in the way of six dairy cows, two brood sows and 10 hens for every farm. He urged the importance of the chicken business and gave some figures to show the great profits that were being derived by farmers by raising chickens and selling eggs. He stated that $250,000 worth of chickens were sold out of Lee County last year.

Mr. Savely talked about the "Cotton Sign Up" campaign and expressed confidence as believing that this campaign was the initial step in taking the proper care of the marketing of the farmer's cotton. He urged the county demonstrators to map out their work and to work to some specific end.

The talks of Messrs. Ed Ruff, C. M. Rose, district agents for south Mississippi and the delta, and Mr. Bedenbaugh, district agent for central Mississippi, each made interesting talks and gave their viewpoint of conditions that confronted them and stated their plans for handling them.

There were something like 50 agents and others present. Of course much that was discussed was about matters that pertained to technical work and a great deal of it was about matters that are often reviewed and discussed at such meetings.

There was this predominating idea, and that was that there should be less of the one crop farmer and more cows, pigs and chickens on every farm if the farmers are to get out of their present straits. It was said that reach that degree of independence to which they are entitled.

There was a meeting that night at the court house at which a "smoker" was given the visitors and which was announced to be for the purpose of discussing the matter of immigration and how best to bring it about.

Dr. D. C. Hull, president of the A. & M. College, was the first speaker. The Doctor is an easy, persuasive, finished and fluent talker. However, he devoted very few minutes of his forty minute speech to the matter of getting more people into Grenada County or into the State, but devoted himself to what he thought was the great work the A. & M. College had done and was still doing. His speech had the appearance of a sort of defense of the A. & M. College. He said, among other things, that it was true that a large per cent of the graduates of the College were leaving Mississippi for other states, and engaging in extension and scientific research, and he said they left because they could get more remunerative employment elsewhere. He said that every father wanted his son to go where he thought he could do the best for himself. He gave no explanation of why, after an existence of 40 years, that the A. & M. College had not assisted in bringing about such conditions among the farmers as to make them prosperous and to make it to the interest of the college graduates of the State to remain here. He failed to supply the missing proof or evidence as to how the College is going to be sustained, if, after all these years, it has failed to reach the farmers in such a way as to get them interested in conducting their farms as the College thinks farms should be, and how the farms are going to pay tax to maintain the College if the men who till the farms, and others of the State, continue to move away. In other words, to the layman, it is hard to understand how the great increase in taxation is to be taken care of and the big appropriation (Continued on page 8)

GRENADA YOUNG LADIES WRITE FROM JAPAN

An Interesting Letter Written About Some of the Customs and the Ideals of That Nation. Things Worth Studying.

Hiroshima, Japan, Dec. 29, 1922

Editor Grenada Sentinel:-

We have received your request for letter from Japan many times and apologize for not granting it sooner. As you have no doubt heard, people and things move slowly in the East and I am afraid my sister and I have learned, to a certain extent, that it is best to do as Rome—or Japan does when in Japan.

There are many, many interesting things one could say about this country, its people, their customs, etc., that one could never finish. I had been in Japan only a few hours when people were asking me this question: "What is the most interesting thing you find in Japan?" I asked to be excused from answering until I had had time to observe, for a little while at least. After a few months of rather close acquaintance with my Japanese friends, I answered then and now: The Japanese woman interests me more than anything in Japan. The strength and self-control of these little women are the most remarkable and splendid things I have found. The whole nation is noted for these qualities, but the women are far in lead of the men.

When I began to know my girls and O Ku Sans (married women) my second thought was this: "What can I learn from these Japanese women?" I soon decided that there were two particularly great lessons that I could learn—their remarkable self control and their capacity for renunciation, which is good.

One of the great psychologists of today, Benjamin Kidd, tells us in his "Science and Power" that it is the control of emotion, not the absence of it, which is the mark of civilization. Now certainly the control of emotion is one of the strongest characteristics of the Japanese women of the better classes. During my stay of three years (short as it is) I have never seen any Japanese lady lose her temper in the presence of others. This must seem unnatural to American people, but it is the result of centuries of training and of social heredity.

In the Japanese home it is often the brave, unflinching renunciation of self on the part of the woman which keeps the family together when all would otherwise be lost. Here is another great lesson in this day of self-seeking materialism, for we are told that the progress of humanity is the epic of the vast, tragic, ennobling, immortalizing, all conquering ethic of renunciation.

Times are changing, but I am told that the present character of the Samurai women was formed during the period of eight hundred years of feudalism and is a combination of amiable meekness and unsuspected strength. To illustrate what I mean, I shall tell you briefly the short story of Aoyagi, wife of General Kimura Shigenori, one of the generals of Hideyoshi, son of the great Taiko.

In the seventeenth century, the castle of Osaka was about to be besieged by Ieyasu Tokugawa. The fate of the castle was a foregone conclusion. The young general, Kimura, knew this well and made up his mind to not survive defeat. He ordered his helmet to be perfumed with incense, foreseeing that his head would be cut off and brought before the enemy, as indeed it was. His bride, Aoyagi, as she helped her husband in this last sacrificial rite, divined his resolution, though no word was spoken. She determined his great love for her should not weaken him on the battle field. She feared that when face to face with the foe, his thoughts might return to her. Calmly she bade him goodbye, then, with a face as pale as the petals of the white lotus flower, she wrote the ever since famous letter, a jewel in Japanese literature, telling him she would await him along the road of death. Despatching the letter by a trusty messenger, she then stabbed herself in the throat and set forth to await and welcome her lord. And she did not have long to wait, for the young husband on receiving her inspiring missive, tightened ever tighter the cords of his helmet and leading a forlorn hope, with shades of evening, fell. Such is the strength and self-control of Japanese women.

If the twentieth century can be called "Woman's Century" in Western countries, it can be called "Woman's Century" in Japan. Young women all over the country are seeking for freedom such as their grandmothers or even their mothers never dreamed of, and it is becoming popular for the men to champion the cause of woman's advancement. While public opinion will not yet grant that the "gentle sex" can reach the intellectual heights of their brothers, there is an ever growing readiness on the part of the men to recognize the possibilities of women in both the business and educational world. In our school we have just employed a young woman who has received her degree from a Medical University in Tokyo, to teach the classes formerly taught by men physicians. Great social changes are in progress, due to the World War and the industrial and commercial prosperity of the last few years. Tendencies to break away from the old customs are growing stronger, and liberty in thought and action is in vogue. A new Japanese woman is making her appearance, one who will take her place with ease and equality with her Western sister.

Christian ideals are absolutely necessary to give to the Japanese woman, particularly at this important time of change. For instance, many young women, captivated by the reading of certain Western books of questionable nature, disregard all rules of proper social intercourse and drift into grave moral peril. An adequate presentation of Christian ideals coupled with a ready sympathy for the problems of the young people, is essential to the making of true social progress.

The Mission Boards are calling, urging strong, consecrated young women to come to Japan. It is a direct challenge! No one who has had the privilege of knowing Bishop Walter Lambuth, deceased, and Miss Lammie B. Gaines, who with Bishop Lambuth and a strong Christian Japanese gentleman, Mr. Sunemoto, founded our school, and who for thirty six years has labored unceasingly to bring Christianity to Japanese women, could fail to know that carrying the Gospel to every corner of the earth is the most important work given to man. When we ponder the last words of our Christ to His disciples, the wonder is that every Christian does not feel the same kind of enthusiasm. How splendid it would be for some of our strong, consecrated young women of Grenada to accept this challenge!

"The field is white to the harvest; the laborers are few".

With good wishes for the New Year for peace and prosperity, in which my sister joins me,

Sincerely,
Catherine Stevens.

The Flute Player

By Christopher G. Hazard

(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

OF ALL the Christmas gifts of past years but one remained. It seemed surrounded by a charm that was all its own and that was as unaffected by the atmosphere of the bare and dingy room as a light in a dark place. The old schoolmaster took it up, looked lovingly upon it and replaced it upon the shelf. Then, advancing to the window, he looked out upon the lighted star in the church steeple that was proclaiming Christ's birthday and listened to the shouts of the merrymakers in the streets as they rose upon the snowy wind.

The old man's mind was busy with happier days. In the picture gallery of his memory visions of home cheer and gladness were upon the walls. Faces looked out from their frames with old glances of love, and figures passed before him full of the beauty of young life. Again he was in the midst of joyous and successful activities, a companioned and enthusiastic. Then, as memory's mirage faded away and left but two receding images before him, he looked once more upon one who had gone to some unknown land, the son who had so mysteriously disappeared from the home fellowship and ken, and he saw again the form of her who had set out for the land that is beyond the stars, but not before she had placed in his hand the precious vase with the pictured flute player upon its side.

At the time he had not fully noted the significance of the happy urle in the red robe as he held his flute to his lips. Pleasures and pursuits pressed upon him and left the musician unnoticed through the days and nights. But the boy had never ceased his playing, and now with some new adventure in the world of harmony, he seemed to be waiting for the recognition and appreciation that he knew would come. A steadfast and inveterate optimist, he played on; to weariness and loneliness he played a hopeful song; for bidding dejection and despair, he became a prophet of better days to come. In solitude and uselessness he was as an only but changeless friend. To him the old man turned as to an oracle. Poverty had taken on after the other of his possessions, but had never been able to separate him from this merry genius, this incorrigibly persistent promiser.

If the prelude does not get discouraged fortune is likely to admire it and introduce the performance, and this turned out to be the reward of the industrious hope of the flute player. He did not hear the step upon the stair or the knock upon the door, and he did not see the amazement with which the schoolmaster listened to the tale of his lost son, as he embraced him and tried to realize that he had indeed come back and brought good fortune with him, but even more merrily and madly he played in the dance with which these two were to go down the future.

Habits are strange things. One can get so far into a habit of gladness as to be unable to get out of it. A face can get so used to smiling as to have no night there. A boy can become so committed to fluting as to be unable to stop. It was so with the flute player: to this day he plays and does nothing else. He sits upon another and a better shelf, but not idly. He is among happy people, but busy sending joy out into all the neighborhood. He has played the old schoolmaster young again and fixed his thought upon a life that never grows old.

Indeed, the flute player has even encouraged the schoolmaster to begin teaching again. The scholars are his grandchildren. They are not having a hard time, for they sing on their way to lessons. They are not unhappy scholars, for one of them threw a kiss to the last Christmas moon. Last summer another of them became a poetess and composed the following appreciation of nature:

A Star is shining fair;
Its gentle beams awaken
The young men sleeping there.
Again in songs of angels
The birth of Christ is told;
The young men go to greet Him
With richer gifts than gold.

The flute player is setting this to music. This scholar has already learned to write. She has proved that by producing an invitation to one of the school sessions in this form:

Dear Aunt Fanny:
Please come Friday, if you can; and if you can't come, don't come.

She is not a flatterer, however, when she said one day, "Grandpa, you don't look a bit over twenty."

THE ANNUAL ROMANCE

By Mary Graham Bonner

(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

ROSALIND was engaged to be married. She was to be married the day after Christmas. She couldn't very well be married before then as her fiancé was so especially, unusually busy at Christmas time, and it would have been cruel, too, not to have waited.

For Bill, her beloved, took the part of a Santa Claus every Christmas for one of the big city stores. He was an ideal Santa Claus. He wasn't too tall, he was not too short; he was rather inclined to a stockiness of build, and extra clothes made him look an ideal round Santa. He had a ruddy face and snapping blue eyes—and dressed in a Santa Claus costume he was perfect.

How the children did adore him! And how he loved them! They whispered their secrets to him and their eyes danced with rare happiness when he waved a good-bye to them and called them:

"Sweethearts," and "My dears," and "Children dears," and other affectionate terms.

Rosalind had been thrilled when she had heard him first, in his deep beautiful voice uttering such beautiful words! For Rosalind had met him first when he had been a Santa Claus and she had been an extra sales girl taken on for the Christmas rush.

It had been her first meeting with him. But she had been kept at the store after the Christmas rush was over, and Bill had worked for the store for seven years now. Every December he was Santa Claus. The other eleven months he spent in selling kitchen utensils in the basement. They had fallen in love with each other, though, at this time when he had been Santa Claus. And many a time when he had said: "Good-by dearie," to a child, he had been thinking of the pretty girl who was at that very moment selling dolls and giving her smiles, her beautiful smiles to a mother or to children.

And now a second Christmas was coming around, and once more Bill was Santa Claus, and as soon as he was through being Santa Claus they would be married.

"I've always had lots of romance in my nature," she said to him one evening. "I've always thought it would be awful to be like some folks—some I know and some I've heard talk. One lady who came to the store with a friend was telling how she and her husband got along perfectly. They each had other friends, and sometimes they met and embarrassed others when they told that they were married. For one time the husband had been having dinner with a friend, and the friend had been looking flirtatiously at his wife who was also in the restaurant. 'The friend had been much embarrassed when he discovered he had been flirting with the husband's wife. And she was telling this as a good joke.

"I wouldn't want that kind where one goes one way and the other the other way. And I wouldn't want to be known as a wife because I was quarreling with my husband.

"You know how you hear folks say 'Well, you could tell they were married, all right.' I don't want that kind."

"And you won't have it, little girl," Bill said. "I'm for your kind of romance every time. I'm for the kind of a married life where folks won't think we're married—we'll be so happy! I had a friend once like that. Why, a cop called him down because he was making love to his wife and wouldn't believe they were married 'cause she called him 'darling.' They found it awkward, but they had the right idea."

And as Rosalind listened to her Santa Claus, as she counted the days before the wedding, she said to herself:

"It will be an annual romance to see Bill as Santa Claus, for it was as Santa Claus that I, too, fell in love with him as well as the children, and every year our happy, merry memories will be revived for us. We believe in romance and romance believes in us, for it, too, is going to play its part."

And someone who knew them both said:

"It wouldn't be a bad idea if every man could be as he was during his courtship days for a whole month of every year!"

Have Breakfast Room Tidy.
Start the day right by having the breakfast room aired and tidy, even though a more thorough sweeping and dusting is done afterwards. If the table is set the night before a light cloth must be thrown over it.

Woman Suffered For Five Years

Mrs. Tinker Declares Her Health Is Splendid Since Taking Stella Vitae.

"Any woman who has suffered for five years like I did can appreciate what it means to get hold of such a good treatment as Stella Vitae," said Mrs. E. S. Tinker, resident of Beach, Texas.

"My system was badly run down and my constitution very much weakened and undermined. I found it hard to get over my troubles because nothing I took—and I tried most everything I could hear of—seemed to do me any good.

"I was ailing most all the time, aches and pains in different parts of my body just making me miserable from one day's end to another. I got so I couldn't take much interest in things and life was a constant burden to me.

"But Stella Vitae has done away with all that, and since I began this treatment I am feeling better and am in a better state of health than I had been in years. I just swear by Stella Vitae, for it is a woman's best friend."

Note—Stella Vitae may be obtained from any druggist and is sold upon the positive guarantee that if it does not bring relief the purchase price will be refunded. Druggists are supplied from the Van Fleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn., Distributors.—Adv.

A rooster hasn't got a lot Of intellect to show, But none the less, most roosters have Enough good sense to crow.

Illinois Central System Will Expend $45,500,000 in 1923 in Order to Serve Its Patrons More Efficiently

The Illinois Central System plans to expend $45,500,000 in 1923 on improving and extending its facilities—an expenditure that will be made in the interest of improved service to its patrons. The expansion program consists of new equipment that will cost $18,500,000, which is now being ordered, and the construction of roadway improvements that will cost $27,000,000, work on which will be begun immediately.

The new equipment purchased will include fifty locomotives, 4,000 open-top cars, 1,500 box cars, 500 automobile cars, fifty all-steel passenger and baggage cars, five dining cars and 125 caboose cars.

The construction of roadway improvements includes additional main tracks, grade reductions, improvements to and extension of yards, locomotive and car shops, freight and passenger terminals, new shop machinery and tools and extension of signal facilities.

Heavy losses result from inadequate transportation. The Illinois Central System, as its 1923 program indicates, is earnestly endeavoring to place itself in position to serve its patrons more adequately.

Since September 1, 1920, the Illinois Central System has expended $23,500,000 on improvements and enlargements to its roadway facilities and $49,000,000 on new equipment. Including the expenditures planned for 1923, this means that in a little more than three years the Illinois Central System will have expended $118,000,000 for improving and enlarging its roadway facilities and for new equipment.

With railway conditions as they have been for several years past, such expenditures as the Illinois Central System has been and is making require an abiding faith on the part of the management in the fairness of the American public. The Illinois Central System has that faith. It believes that the public, when in possession of the true facts, will control railway regulatory policies in such a way that the railroads will be enabled to earn a fair, compensatory return upon the value of their properties. If it were not for that faith, the management could not justify these expenditures.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

GREENWOOD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND THE SPEECH

The editor of this paper, together with several other citizens of Grenada, was invited to the annual banquet of the Greenwood Chamber of Commerce at Greenwood last Friday night, and he, in company with Messrs. H. T. Rogers, W. B. Hoffa and Sel Jones, accepted the invitation and was present.

There were something near three hundred present. It was a function that showed up well for the business spirit, for the spirit of cooperation, the spirit of pull together for Greenwood, now a city of ten thousand people. There was not a discordant note at the banquet. And while the spirit of aggression and progression was dominant, yet there was manifest a beautiful blending of a proper realization of others, and that vein of cordiality and sympathy which shows that Greenwood is made up of men and women who are not wedded to business alone, and who endeavor to have that grasp and that vision of general conditions that betray a fineness of character and superbness of intellect that always carries a people to the front.

In passing, it is not improper to observe that Grenada has always felt peculiarly interested in Greenwood. Grenada has furnished that town some of its best and most stalwart citizens. When Greenwood first began to shake off its shackles, Grenada sent her Messrs. F. R. and C. J. Austin, who for some years were the leading merchants of the town. W. T. Fountain, who passed away a little more than a year ago and whose store is perpetuated in his name, had perhaps the largest department store in the delta. He went from Grenada to Greenwood. Scores of others might be mentioned. At present some of the strongest business factors of Greenwood are Grenada products. There are the DeLoach brothers, all splendid young men, and their positions show that they enjoy the confidence of the business interests of Greenwood. Robert DeLoach is cashier of the First National Bank; Lloyd is secretary-treasurer of the Henderson Baird Hardware Co. and Percy DeLoach is vice president of the Fountain store. So with these and other Grenada men, one mighty good reason can be given for Greenwood's being a really great town. It is destined to be even a larger town. It is the best residence point in the delta. It has a future abundant with the best in the social and business life of the State.

We are giving on the first page of The Sentinel the Associated Press report of the speech of Hon. Barney Eaton of Gulfport, who was the guest of honor and who made the principal address at the banquet. Mr. Eaton's subject was, "What Mississippi Needs."

We do not agree altogether with Mr. Eaton in fixing the responsibility for the State's plight. But, as we have many times stated, the law should be amended so as to limit or circumscribe the activities of the State Revenue Agent. To discontinue the office would be an invitation to the tax dodger to increase his dodging. To put that official on a salary, would make him wear out the seat of his trousers on a cushioned chair in the Capitol building.

What he said about capital being afraid of the State is alas too true, but, in our judgment, it dates back further than the office of Revenue agent, to the repudiation of State bonds, and particularly to legislation that was passed some twenty years ago which prohibits corporation holdings beyond $1,500,000.

In addition to this, demagogues have gone up and down the State for the last twenty years talking loud and long about how capital "is fleecing the public." The fact that such men have had willing audiences has been a bad advertisement for Mississippi abroad. The echo of the voice of a crippled skunk is just a bit terrorizing to one in the distance, and he turns aside rather than come the way where this animal is.

There can be little question in the minds of those who have given the matter serious thought and who are seriously concerned about the State's welfare, that something is needed in the way of change or modification of our laws so as to induce the organization of large concerns and that will extend an invitation to men of means to locate in Mississippi or to make investments here.

We wish the people of the State would study and ponder over what Mr. Eaton said. It is a time for everybody to think more and whoop less. He gave official figures to substantiate his statements, about our loss in population. There is a cause for the loss. If what he said is not the cause, then let's find the cause. And we are losing population at a greater ratio since 1919, the year the census figures were taken, than we did from 1909 to 1920. We are either fooling ourselves about the splenderness of our State, or are doing something to run people out of it and to keep others from coming into it.

As to the laws which have been passed inimical to the welfare of the State and which tend to encourage litigation, in our judgment the responsibility for these laws must largely lie at the door of the legal profession, for that profession has made up a large percent of our law-making bodies for years. They have been the dominating influence in shaping legislation. We say this because we believe it to be true and not because of any antagonism to lawyers. We have the honor and the privilege to count some of the best lawyers, who are among the State's leading citizens, as our good friends. It is one of our regrets that we did not get into the legal profession some years ago ourselves.

The time has arrived for plain speaking. The time has arrived in Mississippi for the proper diagnosis of the financial and economic troubles of the people of the State. It is the sign of better things when men begin to take an inventory of themselves. It gives hope of a better day when a people begin to look around about them, and not way off yonder, for whatever ills beset them.

With a climate such as Mississippi has; with soil conditions such as we have; with the brooks, springs and rivers that are in almost every corner of the commonwealth; with health conditions equal to the best of any state in the Union; with our great delta and the heritage left us by the greatest generation the world ever knew, there is no reason for our shrinking up and growing less in population and in wealth. We cannot live to ourselves. We have evidently been making blunders. Shall we continue to repeat our blunders or shall we act the part of wisdom and profit by our blunders?

Greenwood has the spirit to meet the complex problems of the hour. Whether we will it so or not, we are blind if we do not recognize that the world that is accomplishing anything has discarded the primitive method of paddling your own canoe when it comes to matters that touch the business conditions of a community.

Greenwood is the greatest long staple cotton market in the world. There is not a town in the South of its size that handles more cotton. It stands as the gateway between the hills and the great delta, a section as fertile and with as many resources as any in proportion to area in the world. Its intelligent business men, its far-seeing professional men, its noble women are going to write its name high in the annals of the South.

We repeat that Mr. Eaton has sounded a note of warning that should be pondered over by our people. He has been specific in what he has said. Shall we repeat our blind optimism and say, "Mississippi is all right" when we absolutely know that she is not all right?

"SAVE US FROM CIVIL ENGINEERS"

If the story carried in our news columns about what the expense bills of the engineers of the dead Yocona-Tallahatchie drainage district is correct, then it seems that it was time those who need drainage districts or who are threatened with being incorporated into one, had best include in their petitions to the Almighty, "Save us from civil engineers". Has it reached the point that the tax payers are to be exploited by nearly every one who is permitted to handle public funds where there are not the very strictest regulations? With an expense bill of $225,000.00 for a district, not exceeding 50 miles in length, which died aborning, pray what would have been the expenses if the work of digging a drainage canal had been done.

One of the first things that the next legislature should do is to make such alterations or amendments to the drainage laws of Mississippi as are needed to protect the taxpayers and save at least some of their property from over-zealous drainage enthusiasts and drainage tinkers. We are persuaded that our present drainage laws were allowed to go through because it was thought that they concerned only local interests.

THE MANY NOT IN CHURCH

The New Orleans Christian Advocate, in making editorial comment on the recent meeting of Mississippi Methodists in Jackson and the Laymen's meet which followed, refers to the statistics submitted as to the number of church members and non-church members in Mississippi in the following manner:

"Some startling facts were brought out in the surveys made by the presiding elders concerning the number of people in the State who do not belong to any church at all. We have so long had the feeling that most of the people of Mississippi belong to some church that we could scarcely believe what the figures show—that only 38 per cent of them actually hold membership in any church, leaving 62 per cent without any church affiliation. Of the white people, not counting children under seven years of age, 313,441 do not belong to any church; of the colored people, not counting the children, 401,131 do not belong to any church. All told, there are 369,340 white Protestants in the State, 32,150 Roman Catholics, and 362,282 negro Protestants. The mere recital of these figures gives all the point necessary to the statement that the field is ripe for the harvest."

MURDER IN ENGLAND

England last year had 63 murders—and arrested 56 persons charged with murder. It is hard for an American to believe.

One American in 12,000 leaves this life at the hands of a murderer. In England the figure is only one in 634,000.

In America anyone can buy a revolver. In England a pistol can be bought only by presenting a police permit—and such permits are not issued to private parties. Since the majority of murders are committed by fire-arms, it's perfectly obvious why, in proportion to population, we have 53 times as many murders as England.—New Orleans States.

BOND ISSUES FOR EVERYTHING

The publication of the fact that Mississippi will on January 1, 1924, owe a bonded indebtedness of approximately $16,000,000 with an 8 mill state tax levy seems to have stirred the taxpayers of the state from one end to the other. The startling announcement is made in this connection that nearly two-thirds of these bonds were issued for current expenses.—The Woman Voter.

The next question is, will it stir them sufficiently to stop them from continuing to vote bond issues for everything under the sun and add tax on top of tax?—Clarion-Ledger.

ONLY TWELVE PAGES

The Sentinel received this week only 12 pages of type-written matter for free publication. It is remarkable how thoughtful various "pushing" enterprises are of the press and how generous (?) they are in preparing copy. We did not undertake to read what was sent—just had some other and more important business.

THINGS SHE OUGHT TO DO IN THE BATH-ROOM

Bob Ryder of the Ohio State Journal says one gets used to anything in time and when a girl comes into a public place where he is, opens up her vanity bag and begins to do the things she ought to have done in the bathroom at home, he no longer turns his eyes but politely offers her his Christmas knife which has an excellent nail file in it, and is seriously thinking of adding a tooth brush and a back scratcher to his impedimenta. We desire to say that Bob is just the boy to do it. Naturally gallant, he finds great pleasure in placing himself unreservedly at the service of the gentler sex at all times and occasions.—New Orleans States.

If the people of the different counties of Mississippi are awake to their duty to themselves, and are giving the proper thought to the business conditions of the State, they will not fail to demand a pledge of legislative candidates about the necessity of voting to spend less money when they get to Jackson. Best tie them out before hand. Lots of palaver around the capitol while the legislature is in session.

Even the shooting star has to have an aim in life.

When the average man puts on a bathing suit he looks worse than what the cat dragged in.

Do not hesitate because it costs so little, in truth, many insurance policies cost too much. We are only enabled to make this extra ordinary offer because of some special arrangements we have made.

Some of the largest daily newspapers in the United States, more than 200 of them in all, are offering this same insurance policy contract to their readers. Among the newspapers it might be mentioned that President Harding's paper, the Marion Star, at Marion, Ohio; The Washington City Herald; The Times Journal and scores upon scores of other newspapers.

Knowing that there is nothing too good for Sentinel readers, we made an investigation and got the privilege of selling these policies to our readers.

No such opportunity was ever before offered as this Reader Insurance Policy. It is a bonafide travel and accident policy put out by an Old Line Insurance Company.

While doing a real, a genuine, service for our readers, we make it easier for one to pay his or her subscription.

The cost is just a little over 1-4 of one cent a day--just think of it. Who would not be willing to double this small amount tomorrow morning as a guarantee against accidents?

DON'T DELAY. TIME IS TOO PRECIOUS. ACCIDENTS ARE TOO FREQUENT. THINK ABOUT WHAT SECURITY A $1000 ACCIDENT INSURANCE POLICY WILL MAKE YOU FEEL.

The policy is issued to both men and women between the ages of 16 and 70 for white and colored people. No red tape. No medical examination required.

The newspapers are full of stories of automobile and other accidents every day. You may be the next.

The Sentinel believed that it would be doing something worth while if it could find a way to protect its readers against such misfortunes at a small cost.

CHARGE CHEAP FLOURS MENACE SOUTH'S HEALTH

Land of Famous Breadstuffs Consuming Chemically
Dosed Starch, Alleges Pure Food Investigator

The South consumes from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 barrels of self-rising flour annually, says Alfred W. McCann, nationally known pure food expert and investigator for the New York Globe and Commercial Advertiser, and most of this, he says, is "woefully deficient in protein, containing a pellagra-producing surfeit of starch and a vitamin-destroying excess of chemicals used for leavening purposes." Mr. McCann believes this condition is undermining the health of our Southern people, and in the following article he sets forth part of his conclusions.

By ALFRED W. McCANN
Pure Food Expert and Investigator
New York Globe and Commercial Advertiser

Most people think they are familiar with wheat. "Wheat is wheat," they will tell you. "That settles that, and no more is to be said." But much more is to be said. The U. S. government standards divide wheat into six classes and approximately sixty grades.

About the only wheat in America today which is not bleached with chlorine gas, nitrous acid, or some other chemical is the hard durum used by the better sort of macaroni manufacturers. A few commercial bread bakers, by specifying that they will reject deliveries of bleached flour and refuse to pay for it, manage to get the unbleached.

Protein High in Right Grades

There is an extraordinary difference between hard spring wheat and soft winter wheat. The right kind of wheat contains between 12 and 14 per cent protein. Much of the poorer grades contain as low as 4 per cent protein.

War excitement doesn't discriminate between a superior and inferior wheat. The people eat the entire crop—some 750,000,000 bushels—just as it is served up to them. No questions asked. The more buncombe distributed among them through their children via the text-books on biology taught in the schools, the more ignorant, indifferent, and indolent they seem to become.

Disquieting Facts

No wonder that the National Cereal Products' Laboratories at Washington, D. C., under the direction of Dr. Benjamin R. Jacobs, for many years connected with the U. S. Bureau of Chemistry, have sounded a warning against the alarming increase in the use of self-rising flour, of which, in the South alone, from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 barrels are used annually.

Of thirty-seven different brands purchased in the open market for analysis examination has resulted in the literally appalling discovery that more than three-fourths of the whole lot consists of low grades, even the lowest grade and most inferior sub-grades of chemically treated starch. The protein content drops as low as 6 per cent and the residue of excess added sodium runs amazingly high.

The analysis reveals that into these inferior, demoralized, and practically sheer starch compounds, calcium acid phosphate and sodium bicarbonate are swelled without regard to the relationship between the amount of acid-leavening and the amount of alkali neutralizer employed.

Field investigation shows that when these self-rising flours remain on the shelves of the grocers until the chemicals in them have deteriorated they are shipped back to their manufacturers so that an extra dose of phosphate and soda can be added.

Why No Action?

To sum up one of the wheat sins that the wheat gamblers in the wheat pit have no more interest in today than they have ever been: we find that there is no public control as a public health measure from the viewpoint of human nutrition of these artificial breadstuffs.

What are the government's warnings for? Obviously not to be acted upon. Still more obviously not to be put into the text-books on biology. Certainly not to be taught to the children in the schools. Still more certainly not to be used as guides by the mothers of the race in selecting foods that will give to their growing offspring the maximum of adequate nutrition. What, then, are they for? To be filed away and forgotten? Why all the education and the millions appropriated for more?

If the manufacturers of self-rising flours desire to thank us for this public exposure of the truth they may do so by forgetting for a while their love of profit at the expense of the human family, label themselves as parasites, voluntarily form a leper colony and move in.

most inferior sub-grades of chemically treated starch. The protein content drops as low as 6 per cent and the residue of excess added sodium runs amazingly high.

COMES BACK AFTER YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Fritchele, 4570 Wichita Avenue, St. Louis, were in Grenada this week. Mrs. Fritchele was born about one mile south of Grenada. Her maiden name was Jones. She is a granddaughter of Mr. Archie Wilcox. Her father here was solely one of sentiment, but a beautiful one. She would look around the old home, to spot so dear to her childhood. Messrs. R. Doak and W. M. Dubard knew her well in her girlhood and by accompanied her out to the old homestead spot, which is now the property of H. M. Carpenter. The residence, it is stated, was blown away. But they saw the grandfather's home and Mrs. Fritchele took a keen interest in looking into every part of it and even went up into the garret. It had been 53 years since she left Grenada. It is such sentiment that this lady shows that keeps the world together and makes men and women treasure the highest and best thing in life.

WEEKLY LETTER FROM STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

By W. F. Bond, State Superintendent
Just at this time I feel that a re-statement of the real aim of all of our educational work is general would not be out of place.

The fundamental purpose underlying all our school work is to make good citizens out of our boys and girls by giving them a chance to develop under the right kind of influences. A good citizen is one who is prepared to do well whatever he does for livelihood. Our greatest loss today is every way due to the fact that we are not prepared to do well the things we attempt to do. Furthermore, a good citizen is industrious, patriotic and loves his neighbors. He fears God and tries to keep His commandments.

In every school and college there should be more real, genuine, old-fashioned religion in order that our schools may be sure to produce the right kind of citizens.

THE WESLEY WORRIERS

The Wesley Workers of the Methodist church met Monday with Miss Courtney Tatum for their social meeting.

The occasion was turned into a farewell party in honor of Mrs. Sam Grizzle, who is moving to West Point, Miss.

The afternoon was spent very pleasantly in guessing contests and the honor was presented with a box of farewell letters from each member which were to be read en route to her new home.

A delicious salad course was served by the hostess assisted by her sister, Mrs. Albert Tatum.

Mrs. Grizzle will be greatly missed by the society as she was at one time president and has been a very active member. The love and best wishes of all go with her.

THE SOLITARY WAY

There is a mystery in human hearts. And though we be encircled by a host Of those who love us well, and are beloved,

To every one of us, from time to time There comes a sense of utter loneliness.

Our dearest friend is a stranger to our joy And cannot realize our bitterness. "There is not one who really understands,

Not one to enter into all I feel." Such is the cry of each of us in turn. We wander in a solitary way, No matter what or where our lot may be,

Each heart, mysterious even to itself, Must live its inner life in solitude.

And would you know the reason why this is? It is because the Lord desires our love.

In every heart He wishes to be first. He therefore keeps the key himself, To open all its chambers and to bless With perfect sympathy and holy peace.

Each solitary soul that comes to Him, So when we feel this loneliness it is The voice of Jesus saying "Come to Me!"

And every time we are not understood It is a call to us to come again, For Christ alone can satisfy the soul And those who walk with Him from day to day

Can never have a solitary way. And when beneath some heavy cross you faint

And say, "I cannot bear this load alone,"

You say the truth. Christ made it purposely

So heavy that you must return to Him The bitter grief which no one understands

Conveys a secret message from the King,

Entreating you to come to him again. The Man of Sorrows understands it well.

In all points tempted he can feel with you.

You cannot come too often or too near.

The Son of God is infinite in grace; His presence satisfies the longing soul.

And those who walk with Him from day to day

Can never have a solitary way. ANON.

DIES AT AGE OF 86

Mrs. Rebecca Rook died Jan. 22nd at the home of her nephew, W. H. Martin at Holcomb, in the eighty-sixth year of her age. This aged lady was known for her good deeds and for that self-sacrifice and thoughtfulness of others which usually mark the women who were born when she was and who have lived to learn that life's greatest and richest rewards come from thinking of the welfare of others and of making others comfortable and happy. In the years ago she united with the church and had lived believing in the completeness of salvation and in that reward which has been promised the faithful. To the bereft, The Sentinel

OUR FARMERS HAVE A MONEY MAKING CHANCE

"The year 1923 presents a wonderful chance for money-making to level-headed common sense farmers all over the South," said H. G. Hastings, prominent agricultural leader, recently.

"By this we do not mean an expanded cotton acreage over that of 1922, but just the contrary. There were enough acres planted in cotton last year to furnish, under normal season of growth, all the American cotton that the world can afford to pay a price for that will reward the cotton grower adequately for his work.

"Every effort will be made by cotton speculators and the European cotton mills to encourage larger acreage. The present price of cotton distinctly encourages our folks to go 'cotton crazy' again just as they always have in high price periods in past years. Every time there has been increase in cotton acreage in high price periods there has followed a mountain of debt and farmer bankruptcies the following fall and winter.

"The increased acreage in cotton in 1923 should be fought like fire. Stick to that acreage which has been found safe under every condition. Cultivate and fertilize to increase yield per acre as much as you please, but don't increase acreage. If you do you simply play into the hands of the speculators again.

"Plant every available acre outside the limited cotton acreage in food, grain and forage crops. No farmer can afford to buy food and grain from merchants when that food and grain can be produced on home acres at certainly not more than half the store price.

"Further, every dollar's worth produced on home acres in the way of needed food and grain for home consumption means a dollar less spent or gone into debt for. If we all lived at home and boarded at the same place most of our cotton money would stick in our pockets or to our account in the bank instead of all going to pay debts. The money that sticks is the money that counts."

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF FARM DEMONSTRATORS

tions for education if the State continues to lose in population and if there continues to be more and more land to lie idle every year.

Mr. Savely was the next speaker and he, too, discussed in a very large measure extension work and had very little to say about the matter of immigration.

Mr. Harrison of the Veterans' bureau of vocational training made a brief talk in which he stated that he believed that many vocational war students could be located in the State if the proper efforts were made.

Dr. H. T. Rogers of this county then made a brief talk in regard to the proposed plan for organizing to get more people into the County. Dr. Broadstreet and W. F. Martin also gave their approval to the matter of getting more people into the County.

Mr. P. P. Garner, state commissioner of agriculture, was present but the lateness of the hour prevented his making a speech, however, Mr. Garner did make a good, practical and sensible address at the meeting Wednesday morning.

The Sentinel feels sure that the promoters of the "Smoker" would want to express appreciation to Messrs. Padgett and Thomas for the Liggett & Myers cigarettes which were furnished.

The meeting was in session until Wednesday afternoon. While here the visitors had the opportunity of witnessing the great sale at Glenwild on Tuesday afternoon of Durac brood sows.
